In his campaign for the presi-dency, Mr. Reagan pledged to in-crease military spending by 7 per-cent a year for the next five years. His revised figures will constitute an increase of at least 7 percent a year, after adjustments for inflation, over the 1981 budget pro-posed by former President Jimmy Carter. That budget called for outlays of $171 billion.

Mr. Weinberger had argued that the 7-percent increases should be based upon Mr. Reagan's signifi-cantly higher 1982 figure. Mr. Ger-gen-said he was not prepared to say whether the latest Reagan figures will be 7 percent higher than the 1982 projection. The White House went to great

Mr. Ustinov's speech and the vers involving an estimated 100,000 troops in Belorussia and the Baltie republics and about 80 naval vessels in the Baltie Sea were also seen as an effort to ensure that Moscow's restraint in the last

Walesa Warns of TV Station

Solidarity leader, Lech Walesa, has said the union will build its own television transmitter if the authorvear-old economist, would emerge as premier when a new government is formed next month.

In a low-keyed : campaign. marked by regular discussions on state-controlled radio and television, Labor Party leader Gro Har-lem Brundtland — a 42-year-old former public health doctor who became Scandinavia's first woman premier last February - has vigorously defended her party, which has ruled Norway for most of the postwar period.

Campaign Topics

Economic issues have dominated the campaign, notably the impact of rising taxes, double-digit inflation and growing government. spending in Norway. But coopera-tion within NATO and differences over the establishment of a Nordie nuclear-free zone have also surlaced.

Politicians, government officials, bankers and diplomats interviewed in Oslo during the past several days said, however, that if the Conservatives significantly increase their number of seats in the Storting, they will either form a minority government like the pres-ent one or lead a coalition with the smaller Center and Christian People's parties. Polis Called Misleading

Appearing tired from the campaign, the premier used vigorous language in a press conference with foreign journalists at Labor Party beadquarters Saturday. She cathioned that the polls could prove misleading, because, she stressed, they were based primarily on soundings in August. "I am quite certain that Labor Party support has increased since then, which is not reflected in the results," she said. She declined, though, to predict the outcome of the election.

"We are doing our best; but we are not particularly optimistic It is difficult for us," a Labor Party official said following the confer ence. But we may do better than the polls indicate - surprises are always possible," he added:

"With our support building steadily, it is not a question of whether we win, but by how much," said a Conservative Party official in Oslo.

between the two was strong and at times heated. Mr. Weinberger appears to have emerged with prima-rily just the cuts that administration officials say he was privately willing to accept. The congress poster showed a 1-year-old toddler in a Solidarity T-shirt, wielding a big stick. This time, even some of Solidarity's supporters both inside and outside Poland wondered whether the stick wasn't getting too big - whether the year-old union was not becoming too overtly political and liable to be construed, by the harassed Polish government and its suspi-ative. Resolutions and motions passed by the 892 delegates became bolder as the days wore on. They demanded a national referendum to be held by the parliament on the scope of self-management, reforms that would grant workers significant power in running factories and businesses. They demanded free and democratic elections to the parliament and local legislatures, "social control" over mass media, means to supervise production and distribution of food, changes in schools and history texts, and freedom for political prisoners.

Perhaps most controversial, the

However, according to Pentagon sources, the deployment date for those missiles has been put off because Bonn will not allow them until a second alliance power, in addition to Italy, accepts them.

Both Belgium and the Netherlands agreed in a 1979 meeting to accept Cruise missiles. But since then, both governments have been forced by public opposition to put off any final deployment decisions at least until 1982.

Thus, according to Pentagon sources, it could be a year or more before the date and location for deployment of U.S. Cruise missiles West Germany is set.

There have been several other signs of military changes in re-sponse to the opposition to the new missiles.

Once the Pershing deployment date was changed, the West Ger-mans and the Italians were supposed to announce simultaneously the bases in their countries where the Pershings and Cruise missiles would be placed.

The Italians last month named a military air base in Sicily. But the West Germans, who according to informed sources had picked out an air base for the Pershings late last year, have yet to disclose it publicly.

Again, to meet the desires of the Bonn government, the United States from the start of negotiations agreed that the missiles would be manned solely by Americans and would be considered U.S. units attached to NATO. Thus, there never was consideration of any "two-key" approach, where the host country controlled the launcher and U.S. troops controlled only the nuclear warhead.

The West Germans are particularly sensitive to control over these weapons since their range permits them to reach the Soviet Union. It would, for example, take only four to six minutes for a Pershing-2 ballistic missile to reach the Soviet Union from West Germany.

A Cruise missile, which travels more slowly, could take about 30 minutes.

Private Production of Rockets Worries U.S.

Fear Focuses on OTRAG Missiles' Ability to Carry Nuclear Weapons

By Judith Miller New York Times Service

WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration has become concerned that rockets being developed commercially for ostensibly peaceful purposes could also be used to deliver nuclear or chemical warheads.

The immediate focus of concern, according to administration officials, is a West German company, Orbital Transport-und-Raketen-Aktiengesellschaft, or OTRAG, which for two years has been testing a low-cost rocket in Libya that it says is intended to put weather or telecommunications satellites into orbit. American intelligence and space agency officials, however, assert that the rocket could be intended to have a military application.

To address such issues, the informants said, an interagency task force has been formed to study the spread of missiles and related tech-nology. It is composed of officials from intelligence agencies, the state and defense departments and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

JERUSALEM - An Italian tourist was killed and 24 others in his group wounded in a grenade attack Saturday night in Jerusalem's Old City, and the Israeli government promised Sunday to step up security for Holy Land pilgrims. "We shall take every measure, every possible avenue, so that such attacks won't take place again, or to make it very difficult for the murd-erers to repeat those attacks," said Tourism Minister Avraham Sharir. He did not give details of what those steps would entail.

Two Arab residents of Jerusalem were also wounded in the attack. No one has claimed responsibility for it, but government officials said that they assumed it was the work of a group under the umbrella of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Police believe the grenade was thrown from a rooftop.

Le Monde Correspondent Expelled From Egypt United Press Internet

CAIRO - In the second expulsion of a Western journalist in four days, Egypt on Sunday ordered a Le Monde correspondent to leave the country for what the government said was biased reporting.

Jean-Pierre Peroncel Hugoz, correspondent for the Paris newspaper, was summoried to the office of State Information Service Director El-Shafei Abdel-Hamid and was ordered to leave Egypt within 72 hours, the Middle East news agency said. The agency said Mr. Hugoz had been dealing with Egypt's military, political, social and economic conditions in a manner that is not objective, deliberately omitting facts and putting "exaggerating emphasis on negatives."

Mr. Hugoz, 41, said he was astonished by the expulsion order. On Thursday, ABC-News correspondent Chris J. Harper was expelled from Egypt after President Anwar Sadat assailed foreign journalists for their coverage of his crackdown on dissidents.

Pope Sets Release of Encyclical on Workers The Associated Press

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy - Pope John Paul II announced Sunday that the third encyclical of his papacy will be published Tuesday and will discuss workers and their position in society. He told 12,000 tourists and pilgrims at his retreat here, south of Rome, that the encyclical was delayed by the attempt on his life May 13.

John Paul, who worked in a quarry and a chemical factory as a youth in Poland, has spoken out for workers a number of times during his papacy, and gave his endorsement to Solidarity, Poland's independent labor union.

In his first encyclical, issued in March, 1979, the pope criticized the materialism of both capitalist and Communist societies and warned that the arms race threatened mankind with "unimaginable self-destruction." In the second, published last December, the pope said the Roman Cathone Church must speak out for mercy and he condemned the use of torture against political opponents.

Solidarity's New Boldness Is More Than Just Bravado

Since the party's own congress, in July, the government has been unyielding. "There's a different at-titode entirely," said Bronisław Geremek, a Solidarity strategist. "After the party congress, there was a mood to regroup the party around an offensive directed at Solidarity, to reunify the troops around a negative program, to try to retrieve the cohesion of the party. For that reason, we have a new imate of confrontation."

But explanations of bravado or letting off steam do not entirely suffice. The union's position on key issues — such as free elections — went far beyond any it had espoused. In March, the election issue was viewed as too controver-sial to discuss publicly. If rival groups were empowered to place and endorse candidates, the Communist Party would probably be swept from power in the parlia-ment and Solidarity would gain an important role in government.

The demand for free elections to the parliament goes in tandem with the call for a national referen-dum on self-management. If the parliament refuses to hold the vote, the union can argue that it does not truly represent workers and should replaced. Otherwise, elections are not scheduled for two years. Asked what it would do if the parliament simply ignored the referendum demand, Bogdan Lis, Solidarity's No. 2 leader, replied calmly, "Maybe we'll dissolve it." Close observers were not surprised by the militancy. As the economic situation deteriorates, and as little headway is made on cooperative arrangements with the government to overcome the crisis, the union remains outside the establishment and is driven into new areas to maintain its momentum as an opposition force.

Washington Post Service BELGRADE — U.S. Secretary, of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. has told Saudi Crown Prince Fahd that the Reagan administration expects. to win the battle in Congress over the sale of airborne warning and control system (AWACS) planes to Sandi Árabia.

The prince, in turn, reportedly offered "no expressions of disap-proval" when briefed by Mr. Haig on the overall U.S. approach to military security in the Middle East and the Gulf, an approach that relies on an expanding U.S. military relationship with Israel. Mr. Haig and Prince Falid met.

Warning on AWACS

WASHINGTON (NYT) - A senior official of the Defense Department said Friday that strategic cooperation with and additional military assistance to Israel would be jeopardized if the proposed sale of AWACS planes to Saudi Arabia was blocked

The official said the Reagan ad-ministration would have to reconsider its overall security policy in the Middle East if Congress failed to approve the $5.5-billion sale of AWACS jets and other weapons to Saudi Arabia.

[Senate opponents of the sale have exactly the 51 votes needed to block it, Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston of California said Sumday," according to The Associated Press," But President Reagan is fighting for his first major foreign policy victory and "may be able to tip the balance," said Sen. Cranstonlina leading opponent of the package. Congress has until Oct. 30 to vote on the sale, which it could veto only by negative votes in both houses.]

On Thursday, Mr. Haig and Mr. Begin said the issues of new strategic cooperation and the AWACS sale were not related, but there were indications that the adminstration hoped the strategic agree-ment might soften Israeli opposition to the sale.

After a meeting between U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger and Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, the Pentagon official said the Reagan administration had a larger plan for Middle East security that included the operation of the AWACS planes and other cooperation between the U.S. and Saudi air forces.

region, with the United States in the posture of friend or ally of such countries as Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, Turkey, Jordan and Israel, all of which are concerned about a Soviet or Sovietsponsored threat to the area.

Yet even though these states are in one way or the other worried about Soviet activities, they are not so concerned that they are willing to cooperate with each other under U.S. security umbrella. The Saudi Arabians have repeatedly urged the Reagan administra-tion to act more firmly with the Israclis. They have contended, as have some domestic critics of the administration's policy, that the United States should press the Is-raelis to make concessions to the Palestinians and should stop pro-viding Israel with virtually unlimit-ed supplies of military equipment.

Mr. Haig suggested at a press conference Thursday that the mili-tary significance of the agreement likely to be worked out as the re-sult of the visit of Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel is, so far, more symbolic than anything else: some naval exercises in the Mediterranean by U.S. and Israeli ships; the positioning of medical supplies in Israel for possible futre use by U.S. tro

Pentagon Officials Say Spending Cuts Pose Little Threat to Major Military Programs

By George C. Wilson Washington Post Service

WASHINGTON - President Reagan's military spending cuts will only slow down, not derail, his high-speed rearmament effort, jubilant Pentagon officials said.

They said that they saw no need to cancel any big weapons pro-grams, to bring troops home from Europe or to deactivate any division as was forecast when the generals and admirals feared that David A. Stockman, who directs the Office of Management and Budg-

ship" is as limited in scope as Mr. Haig asserted, and given the risk to American standing in the oil-pro-ducing countries of the Gulf and elsewhere in the Islamic world, why did the Reagan administra-tion undertake this "strategie col-laboration" at this time? The question is additionally relevant because there seemed to be no pressing military need for it. The United States for years has had close military and intelligence connections with Israel, even though the two governments have never signed a formal mutual-security treaty. It has also always been assumed in Washington that in the event of a major crisis in the Middle East, Israel would make its facilities available to U.S. forces. Moreover, the administration has not yet formulated a clear-cut plan for its Rapid Deployment Force in the Middle East.

There is considerable circumstantial reason to suggest that the decision to go ahead with the "strategic relationship" was made largely for the same political rea-sons that impelled Henry A. Kiss-inger as secretary of state to sign a secret political, economic and military agreement with Israel in Sep-tember, 1975, in return for the Israchis' giving up part of the Sinai to Egypt in the second disengage-ment agreement. Mr. Kissinger, who was rebuffed in March, 1975, by the Israelis, was convinced that the Israeli withdrawal from the Gitla and Midi mountain passes was needed to keep American influence in Egypt, Jordan and Syria alive.

As a result, in the summer of 1975, be acceded to the secret agreement with Israel that was later divulged to the press, in which the United States assured Israel that because of "the long-standing U.S. commitment to the surviva and security of Israel, the United States government will view with particular gravity threats to Isra-el's security or sovereignty by a world power."

port, diplomatic or otherwise, or assistance, it can lend to Israel in accordance with its constitutional practice," it said.

That statement, included in a lengthy list of other assurances such as U.S. conditions for recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization, sympathetic consid-eration of Israel's military arms requests and an increase in aid, was agreed to by Mr. Kissinger to overcome Israel's stated concerns that its security would be endangered by the pullback. The simution in the Middle East, of course, is considerably different now than in 1975. But the Save our trees

The Irish have a way of making you feel like a queen. They put you up in one of their ancient castles. Invite you to lavish medieval banquets at night. And show you the most beautiful countryside in the world by day-in a jaunting cart, no less (with you holding the reins). But before you share it all with the folks back home, check out these pound-saving tips.

SAVE ON SURCHARGES

Many hotels outside the U.S. charge exorbitant surcharge fees on international calls. And sometimes the fees are greater than the cost of the call itself. But if your hotel has TELEPLAN, the way to keep hotel surcharges reasonable, go ahead and call. No Teleplan? Read on! There are other ways to save.

SAVE WITH A SHORTIE

In most countries there's no threeminute minimum on self-dialed calls. So if your hotel offers International Dialing from your room, place a short call home and have them call you back. The surcharge on short calls is low. And you pay for the callback from the States with dollars, not local currency, when you get your next home or office phone bill.

countries. And where they are, the hotel surcharges on such calls are usually low. Or, you can avoid surcharges altogether by calling from the post office or from other telephone centers.

SAVE NIGHTS & WEEKENDS Always check to see whether the country you're in has lower rates at night and on weekends. Usually the savings are considerable.

You'll save a lot of green when you follow these tips. And a lot of gas when you travel by jaunting cart.

Cody Allegations Polarize Chicago Catholics

'Those Who Accept a Cardinal on Faith Must Feel Aufully Bad' sons to the spiritual headquarters of Cardinal John P. Cody. Genuflecting and making the sign of the cross, they went about the daily Mass as if nothing had happened. The only hint of crisis was in the homily. Reading from the Bible, "Hypocrite, remove the plank in your own eye," the Rev. John MeDonald intoned: "We tend to be a very judgmental people, and we have to avoid that. Unless we are perfect we have no right to criticize others." But on the Southwest Side.

where a group of working-class Catholics has been fighting the cardinal for three years over his decision to dissolve the parish of the 79-year-old Sacred Heart Church, the mood was not quite so charitable.

"There are two and a half million Catholics out there who must feel awfully bad, especially those who accept a cardinal on blind faith," said Arlene Weidner, an organizer of the Save-Our-Shrine Committee.

Throughout the city, allegations that the head of the country's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese had improperly diverted funds are polarizing the cardinal's supporters and critics. At bus stops, in of-fices, in restaurants, people are dis-cussing the moral and fiscal affairs of an archdiocese with assets estimated at more than $1 billion.

daily newspapers and constant television reports have provided both sides with plenty of ammunition.

No Charges Filed

On Saturday, The Sun-Times, which broke the story Friday with six pages of articles, said in four additional pages that Helen Dolan Wilson, 74, whom the cardinal has described as his stepcousin, was on the payroll of the archdiocese for six years at a salary ranging from $7,200 to $11,500 a year. The newspaper quoted other ar-chdiocese staff members as saying that they could not remember her performing any duties. The local U.S. attorney's office has confirmed that Cardinal Cody, 73, was under investigation for possibly diverting more than S1 million of church funds to Mrs. Wilson and other friends. The archdiocese and Mrs. Wilson have denied the accusations. No charges have been filed. The anthorities have declined to say where the allegations originated know and love is innocent of any deliberate wrongdoing, and I think it's unfortunate and regrettable that a man in his declining years should be treated to headlines of allegations that are unproven," the statement said. At the Chicago Child Care Soci-

"When I felt guilty about something I would rush to confession. Now I find out that the people who were preaching and ching me were doing more than

l ever thought of doing." One of her co-workers, a former monk who had also been a deacon in the archdiocese, said that people and news reports were concentrating too much on the relationship between the cardinal and Mrs. Wilson. "The real issue is whether he can do anything he wants with the church's money," the man said. At the Athens Restaurant on the idential Northwest Side, another Catholic stronghold, Thomas McCanley said between sips of coffee, "I don't like it one bit. If it's true, everything should come out of church and state, the federal in-vestigation of Cardinal Cody's use of church funds is raising ques-tions in the minds of religious leaders.

No one disputes that the funds involved were under the complete control of the archbishop, not subject to audit by the diocese or the Vatican. The church does have the right to question the cardinal's use of the funds and might privately doem his alleged gifts to Mrs. Wil. son excessive or inappropriate. But if they were personal finds. or money given out in good faith said a professor of Catholic church law, even the Vatican would not be able to discipline the cardenal in his use of the money.

Church leaders generally ques-tioned whether the state should have any interest in the matter. This could be government in terference in religious affairs," said an official of the National Council of Churches. When the federal grand jury subpoenaed certain church fman. circl records, it also entered a touchy area of church-state relations. A spokesman for the Chica-go archdiocese said that the church's attorney had made an "appropriate response" to the sub-poena. He implied that the chards had refused to supply the requested data.

Paragraph 501(c)3 of the inter-nal Revenue Service code states that funds raised by tax-exempt organizations may not be used in benefit "any private shareholder or individual." But neither case law nor government regulations nor common law has precisely defined what that means, according to the Rev. Elliot Wright, a Methodist. clergyman who is director of a study on taxation issues and the ion for the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. -Last-minute revisions forced the General Assembly to postpone the vote on a resolution condemning South Africa's control of South-West Africa (Namibia). Five Westem countries said they would offer new proposals to win the territo ry's independence.

The special assembly session called to discuss Namibia was recessed for the weekend so dele-gates could get instructions from their governments on how to vote . now that the text has been revised. The resolution, sponsored by a group of Third World nations, calls on all countries to impose comprehensive sanctions against the white-minority government of South Africa and urges the Security Council to order such stractions. It is expected to pass overwhelm-ingly in the 154-nation assembly. The five-nation Western, "con-

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Mayor Tom Brankey of Los Ange-les said Saturday that the Soviet Union will ask the International Olympic Committee to move the 1984 Summer Games out of the United States if the Springboks are permitted to go ahead with the three-game U.S. tour.

The Russians, whose 1980 Moscow Olympics were the target of a U.S.-led boycott in protest against the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, will make a formal request to move the 1984 Games out of Los Angeles at a regularly scheduled meeting of the Olympic Congress beginning Sept. 22 in Baden-Ba-den, West Germany, the spokesman said

South Africa has been banned from Olympic competition since the mid-1960s because of its racial apartheid system.

Last Wednesday, before the So-vint threat dankeped, Mayor Brad-ley wrote to Secretary of State Al-exander M. Haig Jr., asking him to withdraw the visas for the South African team.

Mayor Bradley has not yet received a response to his letter. But last month, State Department officials said there was no basis for refusing to issue the visas. A White stant maneuvers.

The Associated Press LAGOS --- The leaders of Niger ia and the six Front-line African nations have demanded the complete and immediate withdrawal of South African troops from Angola and condenned what they called the Reagan administration's complicity in the South African incursions into Angola.

In a communiqué, Presidents Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, Ken-neth Kaunda of Zambia, Quett Masire of Botswana, José Eduardo dos Santos of Angola, Samora Ma-chel of Mozambique and Shehu Shagari of Nigeria, and Prime Minister Robert Mugabe of Zimbabwe, also called on other African states "to extend, as a matter of urgency, military aid to Angola to repulse further aggression." "We unequivocally condemn the

The statement also denounced what it said was U.S. support for "the South African white minority racist resime to perpetuate its criminal and inous acts against Angola.

Militant Israelis Settling in Sinai To Protest Its '82 Return to Egypt

By David K. Shipler

New York Times Service ATZMONA, Israeli-Occupied Sinai — A movement of militant Jewish settlers determined to resist Israel's last and final piece of the Sinai going to Egypt is growing amid the rolling dunes of the desert.

Opposed to the withdrawal, which is required next April 28 under the peace treaty, Israeli families are moving from the occupied West Bank into northern Sinai, filtering into unoccupied apart-ments in the seaside town of Yamit and into house trailers in the setlement of Atzmona, which was established as a protest after the Camp David accords.

Organized by the nationalistic settlement movement Gush Emun-im, or "Bloc of the Faithful," the campaign is aimed first at mobilizing the Israeli public 10 demand that the government of Prime Min-ister Menachem Begin defer or cancel the "retreat," as the protesters call it, from the remaining suip of Sinai, which runs inside a line from El Arish on the Mediter-ranean to Sharm el Sheik on the Red Sea.

If that political effort fails, the settlers are prepared for what could be a messy, perhaps even vi-olent, confrootation with the Israeli government and army when the time comes to leave. Some say they will try to hring 20,000 to 30,000 sympathizers into the area and offer passive resistance. Others threaten to take up arms against their own army.

Pol Pot Seen as Benefiting In Cambodia Front Accord

By Henry Kamm New York Times Service SINGAPORE - The Cambodi-an Communist movement led by the ousted premier. A senior government official here who is in close contact with the three delegations reported that former Premier Khieu Samphan, who was head of the Communist delegation, went back on earlier public offers to give the premiership in a coalition government to Son San, leader of the largest non-Communist guerrilla force opposng the Vietnamese.

Urged by Mr. Son San, a pro-Western former premier, to make formal the offer of the top coalition post, the Communist leader would not go beyond stating that the premiership was a matter to be discussed in a committee the three factions agreed to form.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the third participant, repeatedly de-clared his support for Mr. Son San to head a coalition group to replace the Communists as Cambo-dia's representative at the United Nations

The official here, however, said China appeared to have strength-ened the Pol Pot movement's belief that its situation io the field is strong and that the initial danger of Vietnam wiping out the move-ment had passed. The movement is estimated to have 30,000 troops occupying enclaves along the Thai border.

Southeast Asian officials believe that Peking has bolstered the movement's confidence by affirming that Vietnam's military, eco-oomic and political situation is so bad that Hanoi will have to soften its stand that its conquest of Cam-bodia is irreversible. Moreover, a government source said the flow of Chinese supplies to the Pol Pot forces had been sufficient to enhance that confidence. The senior official also noted a remarkable stiffening of the Pol Pot group's attitude toward de-mands from oon-Communist nations. shaped sandspit formed about 10 years ago in the Bay of Bengal is the current focus of bad blood between India and Bangladesh, with each of the neighboring countries having sent gunboats into the area to reinforce their coefficting claims on the island.

India appears to have won the first round, landing a detachment of its paramilitary Border Security Force and hoisting its flag over the disputed island, which has an area of less than 2 square miles at low tide. Bangiadesh, far smaller and weaker than India, denomiced this action as "naked aggression."

Bangladesh Foreign Minister Mohammed Shamsul Haq arrived in New Delhi on Friday for two days of talks with Indian authoritics to try to decide the fate of the tiny hump of sand and slush, which India calls New Moore Island and Bangladesh calls South alpatty Island. Ethnic Tensions Said to Rise In Strategic China Province

Union, has been shaken in recent months by communal fighting and ethnic group demands for greater rule, according to diplomatic and Chinese sources

The recent trouble in Xinjiang province constitutes China's most serious minority problem in years and has already prompted emergency inspection tours by Chinese Polithuro members, including Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping, and top provincial leadership changes.

Xinjiang's stability is of great concern to Peking because the province's location is contiguous with four unfriendly neighbors the Soviet Union, India, Moogolia and Afghanistan. It is also home for the Lop Nor nuclear test site and 250,000 Chinese border guards.

The region's strategic sensitivity is sharpened hy what the Chinese claim to be constant Soviet radio broadcasts beamed into Xinjiang in several languages urging the province's minorities to resist Chinese domination.

Longstanding Tension

Longstanding ethnic tension re-cently surfaced as a result of re-newed demands for self-rule by the Uighurs, a Tarkic people of Mosleni faith who comprise the largest minority in Xinjiang.

The Uighurs, who make up al-most half of Xinjiang's 12 million people, seek greater religious free-dom and fiscal autonomy from Peking and less control by Chinese, who are fewer in oumber but occupy the top posts in the party, govcrament, military and police force.

Ethnic friction exploded into a series of violent incidents pitting Uighurs against Chinese in at least two Xinjiang cities, according to Chinese sources and reports in the Hong Kong Communist magazine, Cheng Ming.

The first incident, in April, 1980, began after a Uighur man 1980, began after a Uighur man was killed by two Chinese in the eastern Xinjiang city of Aksu, ac-cording to Cheng Ming. The Uighurs retaliated hy beating up several bundred Chinese, smashing Chinese bomes and damaging a factory run by Chinese, the maga-zine said. zine said

Southern City

A few months later in the southern city of Kashi, a Chinese soldier driving a military truck struck and killed a Uighur pedestrian. When the court, dominated by Uighurs, convicted the driver and sentenced him to death, the predominantly Chinese police force refused to execute him and the local army command threatened to mutiny if the sentence was carried out, Cheng Ming reported. Further trouble

Wang Zhen to Xinjiang twice in 1980. But Mr. Wang, who served as the province's first party secretary until the early 1950s, was un-able to contain the violence and political fissures within the provincial party committee, according to diplomats.

The situation deteriorated so badly last month that Mr. Deng, China's most powerful political leader, traveled the 1,500 miles from Peking to Xinjiang to help mediate political infighting between Chinese and Uighur members of the provincial ruling com-mittee, according to diplomats.

9-Day Visit

Although publicly Chinese offi-cials describe Mr. Deng's mine-day visit as a routine general inspection, others say privately he con-fronted a revolt by Uightr provin-cial committee members against the Chinese ruling majority.

High-ranking Chinese officials have told diplomats that Mr. Deng ordered a reorganization of the provincial committee, which serves as Xinjiang's local ruling body. The diplomats were told that Xinjiang's first party secretary, Wang Feng, was recalled to Peking al-though that report was later publicly denied.

The second party secretary, however, was replaced within re-cent months. The oew official, Gu Jingsheng, was the deputy political commissar of the Canton military command. His military background is said to reflect Peking's interest in re-establishing order in Xinjiang.

In its September edition, Cheng Ming reported that Mr. Deng dis-covered an "unsteady situation" in Xinjiang. The magazine said that Uighur dissidents had planned a "We want self-rule and don't want to be dominated,"

Xinjiang, a vast and arid out-back in the oorthwest corner of China, is one of five so-called autonomous provinces with large conceptrations of minorities. These regions were set up by the Communist Party as places where China's ethnic groups could enjoy some degree of freedom to practice their religion, maintain their tradi-tions and teach their languages.

Although China has more than 50 different minority strains, they comprise only 6 percent of the na-tion's 1 billioo people.

Since 1949, 5 million Han Chioese have been brought to Xin-jiang from eastern China to help assimilate the Uighurs, Kazakhs, Tartars and other minorities who are among the most rebellious in China.

sochistic streak, among other qualities, in announcing a readiness to accept a third fiveyear term as secretary-general of the United Nations. It is. in the common phrase, a thankless job, and we bave felt in moments of aggravation that a willingness to serve is in itself virtually evidence of unfimess. As Groucbo Marx said in another context, be would not want to join any club that would bave him for a member.

But wby should the secretary-generalship be considered a thankless job. one that ought to go to some suitably self-effacing international civil servant with the skills to make himself palatable to the world's principal power blocs? Why should it not be considered instead a post that offers an individual of spirit and vision an unparalleled opportunity to promote the goals that the members of the organization insist they share?

"Neutrality" is now commonly considered a qualification for the post. Why not fairness? Rather than accept someone who can claim to be thoroughly familiar with the international machinery, wby not seek out someone with a deep desire to use it to advance the purposes of the UN Charter? A secretary-general is often expected to bave.

Kurt Waldheim reveals an unexpected ma- or to express, views that offend no member, or at least no member other than South Africa and Israel. But suppose the test were that he or she could express a point of view that rose above the usual quarrels and offered a new and individual insight into the problems that come before the world body? The capacity to reflect the views of the members ought to be supplemented by a capacity to contribute to the collective chemistry.

Most of the time the job has been sought by politicians who are out of pocket at bome, or waiting for the prime minister's office to open up. The governments that do the voting evidently feel safest cboosing one of their own. We are under no illusions that there is any strong impulse anywhere to change the system this time. It has to be said, bowever, that the quality of person available to be secretary-general is both one of the symptoms and one of the causes of the unnecessarily low state of the United Nations' effectiveness and reputation.

We say this not to be barsb on Mr. Waldbeim. But, perhaps foolishly, we remain tantalized by the notion that the United Nations could be something other, something better, than it is now.

Solidarity and Solidity

With breathtaking boldness. Poland's union. Solidarity, has defied one after another of the Soviet strictures for Communist political life. The first independent convention ever held in Communist Europe has called for democracy, workers' control of industry, and solidarity with free labor unions elsewhere. The Kremlin, as its ominous threats suggest, understands what all this means. The Polish revolution is far from spent.

Of course, Solidarity only demands what every Pole has been taught for decades to bonor with lip service. But the slogans of worker power are being liberated from the thrall of Communist cant. In a gesture not without humor, the union obligingly acknowledges the "leading role" of the Communist Party - whose recent inability to lead has in fact been the main problem.

Power in Poland today is fractured in paralyzing ways. There are centers of organized strength in the party, the army, security agen-cies, the Catholic Church and workers' and farmers' unions. But they are themselves divided and have been unable to form coalitions that would support stable government. Hovering over them all is Soviet military power, once again flexing its muscles on the frontiers. But it is only military power, which cannot in this situation recreate a political system or restore economic health.

Hungarians. Czechs and Afghans lacked. That is why a Soviet takeover or invasion has not so far occurred, and wby the hapless Polish Communist leaders lurch between rigidity and compromise,

The Soviet Union continues to see but one hope of defeating this union movement without massive cost in bloodshed, economic disruption and political bumiliation. Its course, barely palatable, bas been to concede to Solidarity ever more ground in the hope that one day it will stumble and divide or alienate its enormous following.

How could that bappen? Through the very events now unfolding. Solidarity is becoming much more than a union. Its concerns are increasingly political, ranging from the provi-sion of food to the conduct of elections and even foreign relations.

The union's objective is a hitherto unimaginable dose of democracy. The more it gains, however, the more responsibility it assumes not only for factory life but for government itself - and the abysmal state of Poland's economy. Without economic revival there will be no Polish independence. And without hard choices, reduced incomes and increased productivity, there will be no revi-

The Post-Begin Haze

By James Reston

WASHINGTON — The first meeting between President Reagan and Prime Minister Begin of Israel ended, as most sum-mit meetings do, in a cloud of amiable ambi-guities. On the whole it made progress — not much, but some. It avoided the clash of personalities both ides forced after Israel's bombing of the up-sides feared after Israel's bombing of the nu-clear facility in Iraq and the PLO headquar-ters in a civilian quarter of Beirot. This was achieved partly because Reagan, unlike Be-achieved partly because Reagan, unlike Be-gin, has a genius for avoiding personal con-frontations, and his staff arranged this meet-ing very carefully in advance. Before Begin came here, he was presented with a schedule of his meetings with the president and the Cabinet as precise as an airline table of arrivals and departures — down to such details ar how more stern be down to such details as how many steps be should take forward before shaking hands with Reagan.

This was not precisely what the Israeli prime minister expected. Little if any time was reserved for private conversations with Reagan or any of Reagan's top officials. He had plenty of time with Secretary of State Haig and Secretary of Defense Weinberger, but these talks were also very official — usu-ally with seven or eight other officials in the room, whose presence limited the intimate private exchange of ideas Begin wanted.

Loose Talk?

What is surprising is that the protocol was so rigid and the statements at the end were so loose.

The two sides agreed on what was called a "new strategic relationship" to counter direct or indirect Soviet aggression into the area between the Mediuenranean and the indian Ocean, but they gave different interpre-tations about what this meant.

Begin came here talking about stockpiling U.S. weapons in Israel and supplying Israeli air cover, naval ports and airfields if required in the transport of U.S. military power to the area in any emergency. Haig, in contrast, was more cautious. Concerned about the reaction in the Arab world to any such specific U.S.-Israeli military arrange-ment, he talked about putting U.S. "medical supplies" in Israel and merely suggested there would be negotiations later about military stockpiling.

Congressional leaders, just back from their districts at the start of another budget custing battle, don't quite know what to make of all this talk of new "strategic arrangements' and they have some serious questions;

Is this merely a tactical maneuver by the Reagan administration to keep the Israelis from trying to block Reagan's shipment of AWACS reconnaissance planes to Saudi Arabia?

If the United States is going to stockpile tanks and other military hardware in Israel, who will supervise it - U.S. troops or Israe. li uvops?

Or Commitment?

If new air and naval bases are to be built in Israel for use by the United States is an emergency, who will pay for them?

More important, if the United States ; entering into a new strategic relationship for the defense of Israel and other states in the Middle East, as many of us have been argo-ing for 20 years that it should should not this question be brought before the Senate and the people of the United States and debated as a solemn treaty commitment?

Begin wants this "new strategic relation ship" to be defined in a memorandum, and be's well within his rights to say so. At the same time, while talking about the United States and Israel as "alliea," he wants ao written alliance that would limit his freedom of preventive aggression.

This Rezgan-Begin meeting is only the latest symbol of the slackness of U.S. Sinlo-macy. America seems now to be sliding into military commitments without knowing what they are or what they will cost.

The argument that the Middle East is as important to the future security of the Unied States as Europe was at the end of the last world war is fairly obvious. But Atomcans should not hear about the problem by leaks and vague promises of support with out knowing what all this may mean - and without getting any assurances from the Is-raelis about the solution of the Palestminn problem, which still remains the main threat to the peace of the area.

WASHINGTON - Despite my handi-caps as a non-lawyer, a non-financial expert and a non-partisan of the Reagan administration, it is plain even to me that the White House has grounds to sue Wall Street for non-support. Ronald Reagan's economic plan is being mauled by the money mana-gers even before it gets a trial run. If the assault weren't so recklessly selfish and siupid, you could really laugh.

If ever there has been a government in Washington eager to do acrobatics to please the business and financial big shots, it is this one. It has taken the biggest whack at federal spending in 50 years, and every nickel of it from "people programs" that the monied folks don't need, don't want, don't use and don't support. It has cut taxes generously for rich folks and even more generously for corporations. And the response has been one sulky bear of a market, a tailspin in stocks and bonds and interest. a run-up in interest rates that have given the United States the snakes and cast a pail ove the bright economic future Reagan and his allies projected. Thanks a lot, Wall Street. However much Reagan and Co. have contrived to get government off business' back, the mighty men of the financial markets have said, "It's not enough. We want more." Although Reagan never advertised it, the tax bill he bulled through Congress goes a long way toward climinating the corporate income tax as a significant source of federal revenues. A top lobbyist fur the bill says it will cut the corporate tax bills in half. But a lawyer I know has a client company that paid $42 million last year and will pay some-where between $2 million and nothing next year. Given the creativity of corporate ac-counting, I'll bet that is far from unique. The smart guys in Wall Street know this

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Coming Up on October 1

What will happen on Oct. 1 when most of the $35 billion in budget cuts voted by Congress last July go into effect? It depends on wbo you are and where you live.

Some kinds of people will be hurt wherever they are. If you are one of the bolders of last year's 350,000 CETA jobs, you will be laid off, if you haven't been already. If you are a welfare mother with a job, your family will lose some and perhaps all of its supplemental welfare aid, food stamps and perhaps Medicaid coverage as well.

You may also find a case worker at your door wanting to enumerate your possessions to see if they exceed the newly lowered limit on such boldings. If you are from a low-income working family not on welfare, your food stamps will be reduced, and you may find that Medicaid will no longer belp you if you face very large medical bills. How fast this will bappen depends on how long it takes the welfare office to process your case.

If you are a schoolchild, you are probably already eating a poorer lunch (those cuts went into effect this month) unless your school district is wealthy enough to make up for the lost federal aid. If you are applying for a government loan for the next college term, you will find interest rates up and new income limits in place. If you are out of work, there will be less belp in training for and finding a new job and new limits on benefits for the long-term jobless.

Small businessmen and farmers will start finding it much barder to get government loans. Travelers will find their opportunities further reduced: Starting Oct. 1. Amtrak will cut service by about 10 percent, and some routes will be discontinued.

Other effects will be slow to develop. Most education programs won't be hit until a year from now, since they are funded a full year ahead. Housing and other economic development programs usually have money in the pipeline, so they won't slow down right away. Gradually, however, waiting lines for low-in-come housing will grow still longer, maintenance of roads and community facilities will lag, and fewer ports will be dredged.

In programs such as day care, services for the elderly and community health, states will find it hard to translate the big federal aid cuts into immediate reductions in service. In many areas these programs are already suffering from local budget cuts and the loss of CETA workers, so that further layoffs of workers may be delayed in the hope that other sources of help can be found. This may mean an even sbarper drop in service later in the year to make up for overspending, especially if the administration obtains the further cuts in 1982 spending it is seeking.

How much hardship all of this produces will depend on the ingenuity and wealth of each state and locality. In areas benefiting from the energy boom, primarily the West and the upper Midwest, beavy taxes on oil, coal and other mineral resources and general prosperity will make it easy for states, private industry and philanthropy to fill the gap. New flexibility in a few programs may also help states to concentrate remaining federal aid on the neediest localities. But about half the states, burt by the continuing slump in basic industries and by locally imposed limits on taxes and spending, will find it hard to maintain present commitments, let alone to compensate for lost federal revenues.

In other words, if you are personally wellfixed or live in a prosperous area, you are not likely to find the first round of the budget cuts hard to live with. But if you or your community are already in trouble, your trouble will likely get worse.

For Reagan to jawbone the financiers for lower interest rates, as congressional Republicans suggest, would not just be ineffective, it would be inconsistent with his principles.

And yet it is stunning to see the big wheels of Wall Street so callously scuttling the very program that American business, in a literally unprecedented fashion, propagandized and pressured Congress to pass just a few weeks ago.

I asked my lobbyist friend, a key figure in that effort, "Don't they realize they have bought in on Reagan's program and they have a stake in its working?" It was, apparently, a naive question. "Let me tell you," he said, "there is no more shortsighted set of people than the

Finding Some Russians in Southern Africa Is Not News

By David Newsom

The presence of Soviet advisers in Angola and with SWAPO is not news. In the days of Portuguese colonial rule there were few Western arms sources open to the liberation movements. When SWAPO began a military effort against South African rule in Namibia, it found few alternatives to East-bloc weapons.

The immediate reported cause of the raid, the emplacement of So-viet surface-to-air missiles, likewise does not necessarily suggest a new Soviet-initiated extension of Eastern power. The emplacement is more likely related to the acknowledged South African surveillance flights over Angola.

The Soviet response so far has been silence. Angola is far from the Soviet Union. Moscow's pres-tige is not involved there as it is in closer, more highly publicized confrontations. If an emphasis on the Soviet presence leads to a Soviet response, this can cause only more tension and risk of conflict. To resist a polarized approach to the Namibia problem is not to underestimate the threat to Western interests posed by the contin-ued presence of Cuban troops in Angola and the activities of Soviet and East German advisers with Angolan forces and SWAPO. As yet, however, the shattered conomy here has shown few signs lower than expected and taken as a of revival, as potential investors sign that the economy is slowing as continue to hold back until they intended.

The government is negotiating to lease or sell eight of the 14 hotels it owns to private interests in the hope of cutting its losses on the properties. But officials are concerned that the new buyers, to be announced next month, may not have time to refurbish them before the start of the tourist season in December

The Reagan administration has taken a number of steps to support the free-enterprise thrust of Mr. Seaga's policies. U.S. economic aid has been roughly doubled this year, to $90 million, and a Reaganinitiated group of U.S. business-men, headed by David Rockefeller, is giving the Jamaicans technical and economic advice and help-ing to promote foreign investment.

As some businessmen here see bowever, the U.S. government's right hand does not know what its left hand is doing. New York Times Service NEW YORK - The Reagan administration is struggling to deci-pher an apparent and annoying contradiction:

Why, if President Reagan has done so much for business, isn't its applause rolling in? Wby, if Wall Street supported his tax cuts, budget cuts and restrictive monetary policies, is the Street now so critical of the Reagan program and driving down the values of stocks reacted with increasing exaspera-tion — and Republican leaders in Congress with increasing anger and bonds?

to Wall Street's negative reaction, Part of the explanation emerges from comments by a broad range of Wall Street figures. This is that NEWS ANALYSIS the Reagan program did in fact give most of what it wanted to Wall Street — that assemblage of as though the financial community had let down its man. Sen. How-ard H. The New York Times erroneously reported in a story published in the International Herald Tribune or Sept. 7 that Canadair had halter production of its Challenger business jet. Canadair says that the standard version of the Challenge credit arranged for Canada in 1978. Terms on the original eight-year loan called for interest to be set at the Citibank prime rate for the first four years and at a quarter-point over that in the final four years. In addition, Canada is required to pay a 14 percent commitment fee on the undrawn amount and a ¼ percent fee on any amount drawn. These terms look onerous in today's market and lenders are being asked to accept an alternative Libor-based pricing and a rewording on the take down conditions, presumably to eliminate the supplementary charge on any drawdown. Some bankers believe it would be cheaper for Canada to cancel its one and only Enroloan and launch a new operation, which they be-lieve could be sold with a margin starting at a low ¼ point over Libor for a considerable period.

High Excitement

A rather small $50-million loan for Carbocoal of Colombia has rated an excitement among bankers far exceeding the nominal amount. The reason, one banker said, is that "this is only the tip of the iceberg" of a multi-billion-dol-lar project with Exxon to exploit coal deposits and the loan for the Colombian partner is the first of ... many to come.

Competition to lead the initial operation was fierce and the terms - the lowest yet for a Colombian E starts at ½ point over Libor for whe first three years and % point over Libor thereafter. Colombia's crocst terms previously were a marnor for for 10 years.

He said that a review of the Jamaican economy undertaken recently by the International Monetary Fund and Jamaican planning agencies "indicated that all of the basic economic indices were now moving in the right direction, after years of decline." He added, "We have begun to turn the situation

He said that the rate of inflation for the first six months of this year was less than 1 percent, compared with 12.4 percent for the compara-ble period in 1980. And economic growth, which according to gov-ernment figures had decimed by 18.3 percent between 1973 and 1980, will be stable at the worst in 1981, be said.

One serious blow to Mr. Seaga's plans has been the decline in production this year of bauxite, which provides about three-quarters of the foreign exchange earnings of the country and finances a large share of the budget. Sluggish world demand has forced the major pro-ducers and refiners bere — Alcan Aluminum, the Aluminum Company of America and Kaiser Jama-ica Bauxite - to cut their operations.

The cutbacks will mean a reduc-tion in production ranging from 1.6 percent to 2.8 percent in 1981, and they have dealt a severe blow to the prime minister's budget pro-jections, which assumed that output would climb steeply during the 1980s

Moreover, some of the con nies are already lobbying for fur-ther reductions in the Governther reductions in the Govern-ment's banxite levy, reduced last year by Mr. Manley, on the ground that Jamaica was still not competitive with banxite opera-tions in Australia and Brazil.

Voice Mail: 'As Important As Phone,' Users Predict

By Thomas C. Hayes New York Times Servic

NEW YORK - Last month David S. Swaffer, an assistant vice president for global systems in the London office of the American Express banking division, was introduced to the company's new voice mail system. He is already sleeping more soundly. Before being linked to the telephone message apparatus, he had just one hour of his working day in common with the office hours of the company's computer specialists in Phoenix, Ariz, and just three hours in common with headquarters in New York. "This system has broken the telephone time barrier for me,"

Mr. Swaffer said Friday by telephone from London. "How nice it is not to talk to my boss anymore, especially during the middle of the night. The advent of voice mail, a computerized method of storing telephone messages and playing them at the receiver's conven-ience, has not entirely eliminated live telephone conversations. But managers at the dozen or so companies that have adopted it in the last year say they are enraptured by the system.

Productivity Rise

They say it has speeded communications, reduced paperwork, enabled them to work more efficiently away from their offices and markedly improved their productivity. Some cautioned that the system was occasionally misused: Gerald B. Stevenson, manager of telecommunications at Shell Cana-da, said some people had used the system to "send daggers" to subordinates, rather than settle disagreements face to face. But he added that voice mail "is going to become as important as the telephone itself."

Philip N. Hayes, manager of telecommunication systems at. Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, added, "You will see it surviving, not briefly as a fad but as a very reliable office tool."

20.000 Users

The company was the proving ground last year for the voice mail technology developed by Electronic Communications Sys-tems of Dallas. Robert David, president of ECS, estimates that more than 20,000 persons are using some form of voice mail today. The ECS system costs about $500,000, including installation. Its capacity of 3,000 users, with maximum storage of 1 billion bits of information, makes it one of the larger systems available. Tele-Voice of Santa Clara, Calif., and Wang Laboratories Inc. have introduced less expensive models that are less versatile. The Yankee Group, a market research firm, expects annual sales for voice mail systems to reach $500 million by 1985.

Communications specialists say the mail systems can be mastered in little more than half an hour.

The system can be a note pad for its user, a method of sending dictation to a secretarial pool, and a means of sending a message repeatedly and checking at intervals to determine what messages have not been received.

The system converts the voice into digital storage in a receiver's coded "mailbox." When a person being called taps this voice mail file, the computer converts it back into voice and delivers it.

Users can retrieve their messages by calling their four-digit identification number from any Touch-Tone telephone. Many users are equipped with Touch-Tone generators that enable them to tap into the system wherever there is a telephone, even if it is a dial device.

As Profits Grow, Sears Strides Into Finance

By Winston Williams New York Times Service

CHICAGO -- Could Sears, Rosbuck & Co., that giant of U.S. retail chains, finally be rising from a long deep sleep? For five years, Sears seemed to mark time. Its customers drifted off to livelier competitors, and profits sagged under the weight of an overloaded management staff.

In recent months, however, traffic has been picking up in the 800 stores and the mail-order rooms of the country's biggest retailer. Some of the old screnity has returned to the executive corridors of the Sears Tower, following a rash of company-sponsored early retirements that wiped out a whole layer of middle management and some senior officers as well. Profits are growing once again. And confident now that it has finally mended its traditional businesses, Sears, the world's largest retailer, is again moving into ventures that, management hopes, will get the compaoy growing again. The elements of a turnaround seem to be in place," said Joseph Ellis, a Goldman Sachs analyst Sears' reprieve from bad times comes at a time when other large retail chains are under increasing stress.

Success for Sears, as for any business so closely tied to the con-sumer, will depend largely on the economy, interest rates and further improvement in merchandising.

Financial Services

But the new ventures will also play a major role. This summer, Sears opened five business-machine stores, which will sell the new IBM personal computer along with an assortment of typewriters, copiers and calculators. Earlier this month Sears announced its intention to start a money market fund. At the same, time the $25-billion retailer, whose revenue almost equals that of the private railroad industry in the United States, said that it planned a big push into financial services. "Our goal is to become the larg-est consumer-oriented financial service entity," said the white-haired and fatherly Edward L. Telling, 62, who capped 32 years at Sears with his election as chairman. in 1978.

Despite this new confidence, some retail anaylsts doubt that the chain's turnaround is real. They note that Sears had weak sales in August and fell short of goals in its sales plan. And there is still unhappiness in the executive ranks, where veteran employees complain that their horizons have been narrowed because of consolidations and eliminations,

Restructuring

Mr. Telling was the architect of last year's corporate restructuring plan, which separated the company into three operating parts - the retail chain, Allstate Insurance, and Searco, a real estate company. The people who hold Sears credit cards, he says, are the focal point of the company's growth strategy. "We can't forget those 40-mil-ed at several intervals during an interview here. "Those same customers need financial services that we should be in a position to offer." Sears' planners expect the tax cut to generate an explosion in demand among consumers for financial services.

Mr. Telling has spent his tenure at the beim preparing Sears for its new roles. After the corporate restructuring, he shook up the manigement, naming as its chairman Edward A. Brennan, a 47-year-old veteran of the chain circuit.

He then offered early retirement to 2,400 executives above the age of 55. Nearly 1,500 accepted the offer of half pay for three years along with a full pension. It cost Sears $66.7 million before taxes (the original estimate was $45 million), but Mr. Telling says it rejuvenated the company and paved the way for recovery.

4 Bad Years

The corporation experienced four consecutive years of tumbling operating profits, dragged down by miscrable performances in the retail unit, where sales had been slumping or stagnating for several years. In the first quarter of last year, reeling from the blow of credit controls, retailing reported its first loss since the depression.

This year, however, things have changed markedly. In the first six months, net income is up 7 percent to $262.1 million, on revenues of $12.88 billion. The merchandise group reported profits of $103.8 million on sales of $9.4 billion, almost pine times the $12.7 million it reported a year earlier on sales change of that magnitude could take place," said Mr. Telling. He gave the credit to the unit's new mangement team.

The keystone to our performance has been a recommitment to merchandising," Mr. Brennan, the team's captain, said. "You can feel it at our meetings. At meetings you usually have one of two things, substance or enthusiasm. We have both "

Sears believes its experience in these areas claces it in a good position to compete in the financial services business with banks, American Express and Merrill Lynch. Last year the company had prepared to sell its own notes directly to the public, much to the consternation of bankers, but withdrew the offering when interest rates rose sharply. Mr. Telling said that other plans for the expansion of its financial services could be altered by the interest rate climate and that the growth, in any case, will be gradu-al but steady. But, he concluded, the offering by nonbanks of finan-cial services will lead to the lifting of restrictions on commercial banks in a few years.

"The banks are going to become unfettered," he predicts. "Hopefully we'll be a few miles down the road when that happens.'

defeating Chris Evert Lloyd, the said. "I think I tried too hard defending champion, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4, When you want something to hap-on Friday. Meanwhile, Austin, pen so had you freeze out there who won the title in 1979, easily reached the final by defeating Barbara Potter, 6-1, 6-3. But the loss in the final crushed the hopes of Navratilova, who broke down and cried as she received a standing ovation at the awards ceremony immediately fol-lowing the match. She was seeking ber first U.S. Open crown. "I tried so hard," Navratilova

Same Strategy

Navratilova employed the same strategy that she did in beating Lloyd in the semifinal, going on the attack against a steady opponent and denying her the opportu-nity to settle into the match. As Navratilova stormed to a 5-0 eys and steady ground strokes.

bound after the first set, during which Navratilova reeled off five straight games. It was the first set Austin had lost in the tournament. Austin had lost in the fournament. Until this year, everything had come easily to the 18-year-old Aus-tin. She had been the youngest ever to play as a pro, the youngest to win a professional tournament, the youngest, at 16, to win the U.S. title, and the youngest athlete in any sport to win $1 million. Then she was sidelined for four Navratilova's tiredness was most obvious during the third-set tiebreaker. Standing on the baseline, Austin twice blasted forehand winners down the line past Navratilova's forchand.

Those gave Austin 2-0 and 5-1 leads in the final tiebreaker. Then Navratilova hit a backhand volley wide for 6-1, and ended ignominiously by double-faulting for the 10th time in the match.

Navratilova has had several fine seasons tempered by failure at the Open. In the last six years she lost four semifinal matches and complained about rude crowds, airplane noise, dirt and other unpleasaniness.

Then she was sidelined for four months with a back injury. She re-turned eagerly in May, and won This time, she said, she reached This time, she said, she reached the final by finding a way to block out the distractions and concen-trate on her bard-serving, attack-ing game. "I talked myself into being OK and not letting things bother me," she said after her sem-ifinal victory over Lloyd. two tournaments on the way to the U.S. Open, where she had been seeded third. "I think this means more to me than the first one," Austin said "At 16, everything came too fast ifinal victory over Lloyd. ... I think I was too young to re-alize how important it was."

Her match with Lloyd was at times brilliant, but the difference was that Navratilova played thoughtfully. She used drop shots to bring Lloyd from the baseline, anticipated her opponent's passing shots well off the volley, and did not give away points.

Tracy Austin has a smile of victory to go with the winner's trophy while Martina Navratilova has only the tears of defeat

Borg Defeats Connors, Meets McEnroe in Final was a five-setter in which the two

NEW YORK -- Bjorn Borg overpowered Jimmy Connors, 6-2, 7.5. 6-4, Saturday night to move into Sunday's final of the U.S. Open tennis ebampionships against defending champion John

The 22-year-old McEnroe who outlasted Vitas Gerulaitis, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, in the other semifinal - was only one victory away from a third consecutive Open crown. Not since Bill Tilden won from 1920 to 1925 has any man captured the national chammonship three years in a row.

McEnroe and Borg were seeded first and second in this year's tour-mament. McEnroe defeated Borg sin last year's Open final; Borg has never won the title here.

"Tonight 1 felt the timing from staid after his victory in the semifinals. "I just hope I can serve that well against John. Especially against John, you have to serve twell, because he's going to come in inn it.'

"Borg's service was awesome as he piled up 14 aces against Con-nors. In the sixth game of the secand set, down love-40, Borg. snapped off three straight aces to pull to deuce. He hit a fourth ace when Connors bad another break point, then won the next two points on a backhand winner and a service winner.

Borg broke Connors, a threetime champion bere and seeded No. 4, in the first and fifth games of the first set. After Connors broke Borg in the fourth game of the second set, the right-hander broke back in the seventh, then players wandered in and out of assorted crises, some self-induced, others brought on by wind gusts - and controversial calls. The final point dramatized the afternoon's frustrations. Serving at 5-3, 40-15, or double match point, McEnroe had an apparently easy smash at the net. But McEnroe seemed to lose control of the shot, and the ball spun longer than he intended, landing deep in the late correct of the court the left corner of the court. Geralaitis, seeded No. 15, thought the shot was out, but the side linesman signaled good. As McEnroe stood at the net ready to shake hands, Gerulaitis was standing at the sideline, pointing his racket to a spot just outside the COUTL

The only break in the final set came in the ninth game, when Connors could win only one point on his own serve. his next three serves. The McEnroe-Gerulaitis match and never recovered.

Gerulaitis then stormed the umpire's chair. "I wasn't robbed," Gerulaitis said alterward. "I'm not saying I would have won the next point ... but he [McEnroe] was getting very tight."

Rhythm Upset

An earlier protested call, this one by McEnroe, had taken Gerulaitis out of his serving rhythm in the fourth game of the final set. Leading, 2-1, with Genulaitis serving, McEnroe attacked and to force a third set. Gerulaitis drove a backhand into the net about the same time that a loose ball rolled near play. Gerulaitis appealed the ball had impaired his shot. Leon Lipp, the umpire, ordered the point "re-played, setting off McEnroe, who continued to protest until the umpire announced; "Time warning, McEnroe.'

The Soviet Union, embarrassed 7-3 by Team Canada earlier in the round-robin tournament, demontrated superb puck control and sharp passing in its victory over Czechoslovakia in Ottawa.

Sergei Shepelev, Vladimir Goli-kov and Victor Shalimov scored for the Russians in the first period. Shepelev added another goal on a penalty shot in the second period. Jiri Lala spoiled the shutout bid of Russian goalie Vladislav Tretiak with a third-period goal.

Soviet Edge

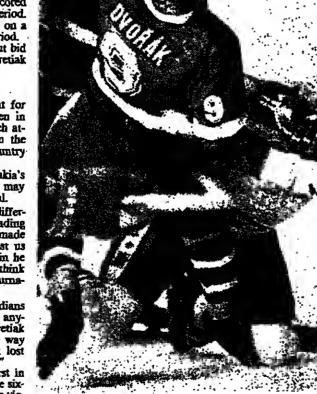

Tretiak was again brilliant for the Russians, as he had been in holding out a swarming Czech at-tack in the team's 1-1 tie in the opening game of the six-countryevent.

Ludek Bukac, Czechoslovakia's coach, said the Soviet goalie may make the difference in the final.

"I think Tretiak is the difference," Bukac said before heading back to Czechoslovakia. "He made some very good saves against us and if he plays like that again he will be very hard to beat. I think he's the best goalie in the tournament."

Bukac added, "The Canadians have a very strong attack, but any-thing can happen with Tretiak there. He's not finished, the way some people said. He hasn't lost anything in the last few years." Canada, which finished first in

Language Newly Minted Words

By William Safire

NEW YORK - Part of the gruntwork of people in the language dodge is to keep track of neologisms (accent on the "of"), or newly manted words. Most are nonce words - clever coinages that die aborning - but all the coins are worth bitine: In the media world, infotainment is being bruised about; the combination of "information" and 'entertainment was possibly coined hy Ron Eisenberg in the February. 1980. Phone Call magazine. This ? toilows closely on -

Safire docudrama, a melding of "documentary" and "melodrama," and faction: all three words illustrate the trend toward the fuzzing of lines between fact and fiction, truth and fantasy. (Watch out for factoids.) Mediamen also like narrowcasting, derived from "hroadcasting," to mean rifleshot approaches to specific audiences, and hrandstanding, which Art Stevens coined in the May, 1981, Harvard Business Review to mean "long-lived prod-uct promotion," a meld of "brand name" and "grandstanding."

In law, attorney Mark Lane was described in The New York Times as "the well-known conspiracy allegator." This word hids fair to replace "alleger" for "one who alleges." and can be used hy lawyers with symbols on their tennis shirts. (See you later, alleger.)

In the death industry, cremains is the pasted-together versioo of 'cremated remains" to stuff into your portmanteau. Liturgy would have to be altered to provide for "cremains to cremains, dust to dust," but whether the oew word will catch on remains to be viewed." (Meanwhile, what's a body to do?)

lo sports, tennis players are oow being called tennists, according to Horace Suttoo in The New York Post. The "ist" construction is evidently an upgrading, as in "piano player" and "pianist." "publicity man" and "publicist." "raper" and "rapist."

In making new anatomical references, keep your eye on your mouth. Poor-mouthing (pretending to be penniless) has been with us for some time, and spawned bad-mouthing (to speak ill of someone). Reporter Curt Suplee used big-mouthing in The Washington Post last month to mean "to pro-mote loudly." Other possibilities ioclude stretch-mouthing (to smile); small-mouthing (to deprecate); rich-mouthing (to ostentate); horse's-mouthing (to write an insider's newsletter), and mouth-mouthing (to coin words using the "mouth" combining

My favorite recent coinages are laser-sharp, sent in by Philip Pers-inger, found in The Syracuse Herald-American, which hrings the dull ald "razor-sharp" up to a fine cutting edge. The other is from Angelo Gionis of Valley Stream N.Y., who writes: "My friend made up a new word. It's called ziggly. Put it in the dictionary. It means wiggly lines going like Z's." Generations hence, lexicographers will say. "Ziggly. adj. — angular lines, probably combined from zig-zag and wiggly." The word gruntwork was used at the beginning of this item without explanation to show how a neologism can slip into the language with the greatest of ease. "Grunt" was a Vietnam-era ooun lor a soldier, taken Irom the sound one makes from heavy lifting. It was a quick step from that to "grunt-work," on the analogy of "paper-work," meaning the kind of joh nobody likes to do. There's a neologism I bet will make it. "I'LL TRY and do that." That means: "I'll try to do that." So why not say. "I'll try to do that"? Ah, but "try and" has become an idiom, say the roundheels of rhetoric. Never mind that "try and do" can be glossed, as David Jenness of Palo Alto suggests, as in: "I'll try, and by virtue of trying am likely to be able to do that."

I think the "try and" construc-tioo is sloppy English and stands correction. The trying is not usually a separate deed from the doing. "try to" is what you mean, say what you mean.

Whenever anyone uses the pressure of usage to force you to accept the nonsensical and swallow the solecism, here's what to tell them: "Try and make me." (That is a time "try and" is acceptable, because it mocks tough-guy slang.)

David Ogilvy

By Susan Heller Anderson

New York Times Service BONNES, France - David Ogilvy, for 25 years the high-powered head of Ogilvy & Mather, one of the largest advertising agencies in the world, has made the transitinn from rat race to semiretirement by striking a judicious halance between country squire and peripatetic elder statesman. When he is not pruning the old-fashioned shrub roses at the Chateau de Tnuffou, the multitowered storvbook castle he moved to eight years ago, he bomhards Ogilvy & Mather, where he remains responsible for "creative standards," with a stream of memorandums and visits.

But quitting the frenzied glamour of Madison Avenue for the sleepy region of Poitou, 150 miles southwest of Paris, was easy, he said. "I was delighted to leave. What a pressure cooker. I got sick of cement. I longed to spend a few years surrounded by green and open space.

Ogilvy, 70, founded Ogilvy & Mather in 1950 with no clients and $6,000. Today the firm has 100 offices in 35 countries, 1,600 clients and hillings of $1.7 billion. Yet changing his life was not new. The son of an upper-class British family of Scottish descent, he set out for France after failing at Oxford, and took a job in the exalted Paris kitchens of the Hotel Majestic. "There I found the discipline I needed," he wrote in his autobiography, "Blood, Brains and Beer." "For 10 hours a day, six days a week. I had to stand ramrod straight at a red-hot stove, soaked in sweat from head to foot."

Recalling an occasion when he was nearly dismissed for telling a waiter a certain dish was sold out for the day, Ogilvy notes in "Confessions of an Advertising Man" how he applied the head chef's standards to his advertising agency. 'Today I see red when anyhody tells a client that we cannot produce an advertisement or a television commercial on the day we have promised it. Io the best establishments, promises are always kept."

From Stoves to Secret Service

From the Majestic's kitchens he switched to selling cooking stoves in Britain, then emi-grated to the United States with letters of introduction to such luminaries as Alexander Woollcott, He joined George Gallup's polling organization, then entered the British Secret Service during World War II. when he was assigned to the British Emhassy in Washington. After the war he tried farming in an Amish community in Lancaster County. Pa., giving that up for advertising. "I remembered how my grandfather had failed as a farmer and become a successful husiness-man," he explained. In his book-lined 12th-century study, with 10-foot-thick walls and a Telex clattering in the corner, he summed up his formula lor success: "Get a reputation for being creative, hire people who are better than you, and in the second then leave them to get on with it." And he did just that.

David Ogilvy at his chateau.

Preparation lor the change in his life began nearly 20 years ago when he chose France to settle in. "When I lived in New York we'd tour France on bikes every summer and grew to love it," he recalled.

He purchased Touffou 14 years ago. The chateau is a spectacular sight, six immense huildings of warm, pinkish other stone perched on a cliff overlooking the sinuous Vienne River that flows into the Loire.

It is a curious mixture of architectural styles: a medieval 12th-century keep, 14thcentury round towers with sculptured windows, a Renaissance wing dating from 1560 and, in the basement, dank cells for prisoners. Unlike most chateaus of this vintage, Touffou was oever a ruin. It needed new loundations, a two-year job after Ogilvy bought il, and oow it needs new roofs.

Passionate Gardener

"We've already dooe ooe roof --- it took 10 months," Ogilvy said glumly. "The place was covered in scaffolding, like having your wife in curlers every day.

The interior has the air of a very comfortable country house, its rooms a pleasant clutter of antiques, rustic local furniture and modern gadgets.

A Peripatetic Adman Makes Flowery Transition

From Manhattan Rat Race to Chateau in France

Toution has literally blossomed since Ogilvy moved in. A passionate gardener, he has planted one and a half miles of hedges to form a series of "rooms," each enclosing its own secret delights. Fragrant plants scent the summer air - lavender, Florentine magnolias, sweet peas, honeysuckle, viburnum.

The household includes Ogilvy's wife, Herta, her three teen-age children, two garden-ers, three maids, two energetic dogs and four horses. Ogilvy's son, David. 38, is in the real estate business in Greenwich, Conn.

Summers are a continuous stream of house guests and tourists. As a national historical monument the chateau must be open a certain amount of time to the public in order to receive government restoration funds; thus Touffou is open in July and August. Guests are coddled with homebaked crois-sants, homemade jam and honey from Touflou bees. They swim, play croquet and paddle canoes on the Vienne. Unlike the previous owner, Ogilvy does not hant. "I'm not a killer," he stated. Indeed, his pet project is the World Wildlife Fund, for which he writes fund-raising advertisements and twists atms for free advertising. Six years ago, Ogilvy stepped down as chairman of his agency but keeps an advisory eye on campaigns. "If I think offices are making mistakes I tell them so," he said. Is anyone listening? "Occasionally," he replied.

Amish Serenity

The view of the Vienne is rather different from the view of the Hudson. "I don't miss New York," he admitted. "I miss the Amish country and Amish life - its screnity, its happiness, its hard work and contentment."

In a recent trip to Ogilvy & Mather's offices he observed changes in American advertising. "There's a continual deterioration in the quality of print advertising. In most agencies 80 percent of the husiness is television. Print ads have deteriorated, so people don't pay any attention."

Having landed many foreign clients, he is intrigued by international advertising peculiarities. "There's a big difference between American and European ads," he asserted. "In America a commercial may be crass but it's been tested, whereas here there's very little testing. French advertising is much more sophisticated because it's not researched."

His view of himself has also mellowed. "I was awful to work for because I was under such pressure I had no time to be polite," he admitted. "I was a bit of a bully."

These days he keeps his hand in by bullying the local government to prevent commercial development of the region. And, last summer when the neighbors were engaged in a bitter lamb war against lower-priced im-ports, Ogilvy rushed to the aid of sheep farmers by writing an advertisement in the French newspaper Le Monde.
